Preface

This edition is the first informational reference book, presenting St.Petersburg sociologists - members of St. Petersburg Association of Sociologists (SPAS).

St. Petersburg Association of Sociologists was established on the basis of the Northwest Branch of the Soviet Sociological Association, as a voluntary public association of sociologists (item 1.1 of the Charter) on 3 September 1992. The Association has the purpose of assistance for developing sociological science, improvement of the professional activity and professional interaction (item 2.1.). The Charter also declared that the association is a successor of traditions of the former North-West Branch of the Soviet Sociological Association of Academy of Sciences of the USSR (item 1.5.).

The succession of the SPAS activity is very important. Sociology was most advanced in the former Soviet Union, especially in Leningrad. The first sociological textbooks were published by Vladimir A. Jadov, Andrei G. Zdravomislov. The Leningrad sociological school was organized, which associated with researches of value orientations. Vladimir A.Jadov was the founder of that School. The development of new scientific directions for sociology took place in Leningrad. The researches of problems of personality (Igor S. Kon), social structure (Ovsei I. Shkaratan), family (Andrei G. Harchev), sociology of science (Samuil A. Kugel), youth (Svetlana N. Ikonnikova, Vladimir T. Lisovskij) substantially determined the paradigms of those directions in the future. The main feature that distinguished Leningrad sociologists - carefulness in the solution of problems of sociological methods<sup>1</sup>. The Association has declared about the succession of scientific traditions according to those achievements.

Complicated processes of reforming of sociological science in St. Petersburg in subject and methodical areas is under way, in educational and publishing, in organizational structure. New subject areas (social movements, parties, gender, social networks, electoral behavior, etc.), were enriched by various methods of researches (biographical method, discourses analysis, event-analysis, comparative researchers, etc.). Organizational forms of scientific activity experienced a lot of changes also. State structures (St.Petersburg Branch of Institute of Sociology of RAS, Faculty of Sociology of St.Petersburg State University, Humanative faculties of other Universities) are reformed, new non-government research and pedagogical organizations (European University in St.Petersburg, International School for Sociology of Science and Technology, Gallup Ltd., Sociological Scientific Research Center, Center of Independent Social Researchers, etc.) have been established.

The international cooperation of St.Petersburg sociologists has become more intensive and diverse. The relationship with Western colleagues is a normal practice of the scientific activity. New periodical sociological editions are appeared (The Journal of Sociology and Social Anthropology; Telescope: Observations on the every-day life of the Peteresburgians, etc.). Finally, a new generation of young researches with had professional sociological education participates in sociological research.

St. Petersburg Association of Sociologists tries to organize professional commutations, the support new perspective research projects and forms of scientific activity in this complex context.

By now the Association has also been reformed. This edition is a unique event in St. Petersburg, which shows real scales and directions of sociological development.

Information of more than 150 Members of SPAS presents the situation of St. Petersburg sociology, subject and problematic areas, research projects, main publications, pedagogical and publishing activity.

St. Petersburg Association of Sociologists was re-registered by St. Petersburg Justice Department (summer, 1999), according to the Federal Law on Public Associations. The General Meeting adopted the new Charter of the Association on April 26, 1999. There was the election of the Board, the President and Vice-President of SPAS (see Appendix).

The further plans of Association contents publishing projects, continuation of sociological seminar New ideas in Sociology, the organization of scientific conferences, the adoption of professional Code of sociologists, the examination of administration bills, different forms of international cooperation, the support of young sociologists, etc. St. Petersburg Association of Sociologists is an affiliated member of Russian Sociological Society (ROS) and presents its interests in St. Petersburg and NorthWest of Russia.

SPAS cooperate with the International Sociological Association, with different National Associations, St. Petersburg Sociological Community of Kovalevskiy M.M., uniting teachers of sociological disciplines in high schools, etc.

Not of all sociologists working in St.-Petersburg were entered submitted in this edition, some members of the Association were unable present the data in time. Nevertheless, the Board of SPAS considers that the re-registration of members is finished according this edition. We invite all colleagues, professionally engaging in sociology, to cooperate with Association. We expect, that this informational reference book will promote further consolidation of St. Petersburg sociologists.

The Member of SPAS should submit the following data: date of birth, affiliation, scientific degree, scientific interests, basic publications and research projects, teaching activity, address, telephone, fax, e-mail. Colleagues determined the density of the information independently, in limits, offered by the editorship. The editing of submitted texts contains the making the common form of bibliographical data and representation of research projects. We are going to edit the 2-nd reference book, containing the information about sociological research and educational organizations of St. Petersburg - affiliated and regular collective members of SPAS.

The collection of information was made by Alla Rodionova, with help of Victor Voronkov, Violetta Gorkovenko, Vladimir Kostiushev, Alla Russalinova, and Mikhail Sokolov. The information processing was made by Alla Rodionova, Vladimir Kostushev. Boris Wiener translated the edition in English. The index was prepared by Vladimir Kostushev, the head of this project. The participation of Flerova Ye.V. was important.

We are very grateful to the Administration of St. Petersburg and to the Foundation St. Petersburg Tradition for financial support of the project, to the Foundation Educational Literature for carefulness and attention during the preparation of the manuscript for this edition.

August 13, 1999.

Vladimir Kostiushev,
The President of St.Petersburg Association of sociologists,
The Vice-President of Russian Sociological Society.
